IAN EDWARDS WILDLIFE SCULPTURE

Throughout April

Ian Edwards' sculptures incorporate classical ideas about the sculpting process, reminiscent of Michelangelo's idea of seeing a form within a piece of marble and 'setting him free'. Well known for his figurative work, Edwards is also recognised for his keenly observed, wildlife pieces. As a lover of countryside walking, Edwards often uses the peace of the outdoors as a break from his busy practice. Time to stop and observe a kingfisher sitting on a reed by the riverbank, or an otter swimming in the canal are vital to Edwards' peace of mind and his sense of balance within a crazy, manic world. Edwards' sculpture will be shown as part of Axle Arts' Outdoor Sculpture Exhibition at Tasburgh House Hotel, Bath over the first two weekends of May.
